Meet the Author

Amy Crane Johnson

Amy Crane Johnson, author of the seasonally themed The Solomon Raven Series / La serie del cuervo Salomón, is a native of Green Bay, Wisconsin. From her backyard she can watch the squirrels gather food and build their homes in the fall, count the snowflakes and wonder how other animals deal with winter, hide safe in her home while spring storms blow over, and witness the rolling spread of the city into formerly pristine areas. The immediacy of the seasons in Wisconsin coupled with a vibrant imagination has enabled her to capture the stories relevant to the cycles of year in the north woods.

Ms. Johnson's devotion to the written word prompted her to attend the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay where she earned her B.A. in English with an emphasis in Creative Writing. From there she spent several years in advertising where she produced award winning video and radio scripts. Finally, Amy arrived where she belongs, Raven Tree Press. Here she spent several months researching and composing each of the books in The Solomon Raven Series / La serie del cuervo Salomón. These include A Home for Pearl Squirrel / Una casa para la ardilla Perla (Fall), Lewis Cardinal's First Winter / El primer invierno de Luis, el cardenal (Winter), Cinnamon & the April Shower / Canela y el aguacero de abril (Spring), and Mason Moves Away / Mason se muda (Summer).

Each title in the series deals with both the day-to-day life of the forest as well as the universal themes of friendship, transition and individuality. The inspiration for her books stem from her observations of people and the natural world.

A wife, mother of two, and devoted canine caretaker, Amy has recently become a Grandmother. While balancing work, family, and her writing she has appeared in numerous anthologies, periodicals, and online publications. She is currently seeking a home for her poetry manuscript Beyond the Breakers.

In addition to her writing, Ms. Johnson enjoys watercolor and acrylic painting, watching live hockey, and sing-a-longs. She is a horror-film fanatic and it is rumored she once even went to a screening of "Night of the Living Dead, II" alone. When asked about this, she only replied with a low gurgling moan.

Questions for the Author

Amy
Crane Johnson

1. Who or what inspires you to write or draw?
Amy draws her inspiration from such day-to-day occurrences as washing the dishes or conversations with friends and family. She is socially conscious and often finds ideas for her writing in the course of world affairs. Dealing with personal woes, hers and others, Amy finds it cathartic to write.

2. What is your favorite writing environment? Describe your workspace.
Though ideally she would like to write outside, she finds herself surrounded by an old beloved corduroy couch, a curious selection of photos and paintings, and many magic charms and do-dads in her basement office.

3. Are there any special supplies you use for writing?
Hating to mess up all of her fancy journals, Amy insists that any kind of paper is fine with her. She is not picky about her instrument either claiming, "Any kind of pencil or free-give-away pen with a company name and logo on the side is great." She does have a preference for black ink. Quite often she ends up using a Bic Roller pen and a yellow legal pad.

4. Describe your creative process? What is a 'must have' when you are in the creative process?
Write it all down as fast as the pen/pencil will move. Go back and move this here, that there, add, subtract and do it all again. Then Amy shows it to her writing group and goes back and moves this here, that there, etc. If you smell coffee and clove cigarettes on your way in you know she's revising.

5. Who are your favorite authors / illustrators? What influence have they had on your work?
Amy is a strong believer in the power of digestion. Though she is not always sure how her favorite authors have influenced her, she knows that they have. Amy enjoys reading in a wide variety of styles and genres. Her favorite children's authors include Robert Munch, Robert Louis Stevenson, A.A. Milne, and Kevin Henkes. If reading adult fiction she turns to Joyce Carol Oates, Edgar Allan Poe, Stephen King, Anne Tyler, and Wally Lamb. When it's a poetry fix she needs you'll find her wrapped in the words of Charles Bukowski, B.F. Fairchild, Billy Collins, Ellen Kort, Emily Dickinson, and Dr. Seuss.

6. What specific message do you want people to get from this book and why? What experiences have you had that directly reinforce your book's message?
Each story in the series has a season and an issue as its foundation. Many lessons of friendship, dealing with fears and change, and environmental issues can be found in the stories. Kids and adults can learn new ways of dealing with these issues. These books are a springboard for discussion in the home as well as school and library venues.

7. Do you have any interesting hobbies that other's may be interested in?
She is especially fond of watercolor and acrylic painting. Either in an attempt to hang fast to her childhood or to impress visiting dignitaries, Amy also collects tea accessories.

8. How long have you been at work on this book? Why did you write it? Where did your ideas come from?
All the books in The Solomon Raven Series / La serie del cuervo Salomón took several months to write, including revisions. The characters directly influenced the stories. They grew out of each other. The ideas came from themes that Amy felt were important, such as self-esteem, embracing diversity, and some seemingly unavoidable environmental changes, especially urban sprawl.

9. Did the book involve special research? Please include.
Amy researched animal habitats, migration and hibernation. She also read up on the birthing cycles of certain animals that are portrayed as characters in the books to see when their offspring appear in the seasonal cycle.

10. Detail any fun things that have happened/or are happening because of the publication of this book.
The book readings and signings are always fun for Amy. She is thrilled when kids are familiar with one of the books and get excited when they recognize a character that reappears in another book in the series. She finds that many kids are writing their own stories, and in telling her about their writing she finds their enthusiasm contagious.

Meet the Illustrator

Robb Mommaerts

Robb Mommaerts, illustrator of the seasonally themed The Solomon Raven Series / La serie del cuervo Salomón, is a native of Green Bay, Wisconsin. Robb has had a lifetime fascination with both the natural world and cartooning. Growing up near the north woods, and witness to the seasons in all their glory, he is able to translate his familiarity with these environments with a love that can take the bite off even the coldest winters.

Originally earning his BFA in Graphic Design and Illustration, Robb later took his abilities as an artist and his knack for working with children a step further. He earned his teaching certification in 2001. Though he currently works as a graphic designer with award winning advertising firm Aketype Inc., and is not currently a teacher, he speaks with children at Green Bay area schools about his work as well as their own creative talents whenever he can.

Robb spent about three months illustrating each of the books in The Solomon Raven Series / La serie del cuervo Salomón. These include A Home for Pearl Squirrel / Una casa para la ardilla Perla (Fall), Lewis Cardinal's First Winter / El primer invierno de Luis, el cardenal (Winter), Cinnamon & the April Shower / Canela y el aguacero de abril (Spring), and Mason Moves Away / Mason se muda (Summer). He used his work on these books as a good excuse to take a few extra nature hikes and to do a lot of photographic "research."

Robb started each illustration as a black and white colored pencil drawing on bristol board paper with a Berol Prismacolor® black pencil. He then colored the art in a layered digital Adobe® PhotoShop file. Several overlays of color were used to achieve the look and mood that was needed. He is currently exploring the use of watercolor in his work.

Robb's work has appeared in many places and has won several awards including ADDY's Best of Show. He has published a story with Dark Horse Comics, winning their 2003 Strip Search Competition. He has illustrated Gene Shepard's Wisconsin Hodag by Badger House Publishing. A man of many talents and faces, Robb is a husband, illustrator, teacher, and self-proclaimed nerd.

Robb Mommaerts

1. Who or what inspires you to write or draw?

5. Who are your favorite authors / illustrators? What influence have they had on your work?
Robb enjoys the work of William Joyce, Frank Frazetta, Mike Mignola, and Norman Rockwell. These artists have influenced Robb's sense of color, layout, character design, and emotion. They have also inspired Robb's strong sense of craftsmanship.

Lewis Cardinal's First Winter/ El primer invierno de Luis, el cardenal

Welcome to the world of Solomon Raven. In the second book in The Solomon Raven Series / La serie del cuervo Salomón by author Amy Crane Johnson and Illustrator Robb Mommaerts, we meet Lewis Cardinal.

It is Lewis's first winter in the north woods and Cinnamon Bear and Polly the frog are getting ready to hibernate. Silver the fish is swimming deeper than usual. Roberta and the other birds are starting their migration. Lewis is worried that he too should be preparing for the snow, and that some of his friends are leaving.

Solomon Raven, the wisest bird in all the forest, notices how sad Lewis is and explains how each of his friends spend their winters. He tells Lewis not to worry for they will all be back in spring. Besides, not all of Lewis's friends are leaving. Solomon points out the various ways the rest of Lewis's and our woodland friends, including Pearl Squirrel, prepare for the winter.

Lewis Cardinal's First Winter/ El primer invierno de Luis, el cardenal

"The reassuring words of wise Solomon Raven and the subsequent appearance of an adorable little female cardinal put Lewis at his ease and leave him feeling secure again. The acrylic cartoon illustrations are big, bright, and appealing..." —School Library Journal

"Young Lewis Cardinal learns about hibernation and migration as his woodland friends get ready in different ways for winter. Colorful and dramatic illustrations by Robb Mommaerts show Lewis and Solomon Raven, the wisest bird in the forest, as they watch the flurry of autumn activity. Lewis begins to understand the process of change and friendship. This story, presented in both English and Spanish, follows the first Solomon Raven story; A Home for Pearl Squirrel and both are highly recommended." —LANE EDUCATION SERVICE DISTRICT

"...Winter won't seem so bad after all! Another story about the forest animals that does a really nice job of introducing what animals do in the winter. Written in both English and Spanish, the text is simple, but the illustrations are gorgeous." —Fort Worth I.S.D. Book Reviews, TX

"Robb Mommaerts' wonderful artwork in the Solomon Raven Series is very friendly and inviting; he has captured childlike fun with his unique and refreshing style." —Aaron Moriarity, Illustrator
